In India, the ratio of patients seeking health care to the availability of qualified health care providers, especially doctors and nurses, is high compared to developed countries. The result is overcrowded health care facilities and long waiting periods in outpatients. In such situation when we talk about cancer, the seriousness creates many trembling waves deep within patient's minds and hearts. Several questions pops up in minds of the patients and relatives when then get the news of having cancer. These needs to be addressed on time and appropriately, else it leads to confusion, anxiety and discontinuation of treatment.

Looking at all such concerns and need of the cancer patients, Naraindas Morbai Budhrani Trust, is constantly embryonic its Cancer Care Program. Counseling, Awareness, Support Group meeting and Financial Assistance for treatment continuation are the key interventions which are implemented in the government and charitable hospitals by trained and experienced team of counsellors.
